NEUTRALITY IN SUDAN TO BE ATTITUDE OF FRANCE

League Arbitration Hint Is Spurned By Britain

WARSHIPS SENT

Naval Concentration At Alexandria And Port Said

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 24.—There are at present about two battalions of British troops in the Sudan in addition to Sudanese troops which now form the Sudanese defense force. There is roughly one division of British troops in Egypt where the Egyptian forces number about 7,000.

The situation is now in the hands of Field-Marshal Viscount Allenby.

Martial law prevails in the Sudan.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Nov. 24.—The Foreign Office intimates that France, in view of the Anglo-French Treaty of 1904 respecting Morocco and Egypt, will maintain strict neutrality in any Anglo-Egyptian conflict.

French diplomatic circles hope that it will be possible to submit the Anglo-Egyptian dispute to the arbitration of the League of Nations although Egypt is not a member of the League. They are of the opinion that the same procedure might advantageously be followed as was adopted in the Vilna dispute.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 24.—With reference to the suggestions to submit the Anglo-Egyptian issue to the League of Nations, British officials point out that by the existing diplomatic understanding all matters lying within the province of the four reserved points, namely, the Sudan, the protection of the Suez Canal, foreign interests and the defence of Egypt are matters of domestic policy within the British Empire and therefore outside the competence of the League.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 24.—The Iron Duke and the Malaya have been ordered from Malta to Alexandria and Port Said respectively. The light-cruiser Caradoc, now in Greek waters, and two destroyers at Port Said have been ordered to Suez.

The battleship Benbow, which was expected to leave Alexandria for Malta on December 3, has been ordered to remain at Alexandria.

(Reuter's Service)

Alexandria, Nov. 24.—The occupation of the Customs was effected by 100 Marines without incident. The ordinary routine business was not affected.

(Reuter's Service)

Cairo, Nov. 24.—The list of Ministers has been completed. It is of a distinctly moderate complexion.

Siwar Pasha is Premier and Minister of the Interior, Ahmed zul Ficar assumes control of foreign affairs, Zakia bou Seoud is given the portfolio of Justice and Sidky that of Pious Foundations, while Sad ek Yehia is appointed Minister of War.

INTERNATIONAL LIQUOR RING IS BARED

MRS. MAX JEROME PHAFF, INT.

Above is shown Mrs. Max Jerome Phaff, of New York, whose husband, a naturalized American, is under arrest in Havre, France, charged with piracy as a result of the raiding by "hijackers" of the French steamer Mulhouse off the coast of Long Island and the theft of her big liquor cargo. Phaff is alleged by the French police to have boasted he was "king" of American bootleggers and that the Mulhouse was robbed to keep foreigners out of the rich bootlegging field. Mrs. Phaff is said to have admitted knowing some of the details of her husband activities.

Mood Mastery Taught By 'Psycho-Rhythmic' Dancers

BY IRENE CORBALLY KUHN

Something entirely new has reached Shanghai in the dancing of John and Louise Bovingdon, exponents of a new art which has already been christened by Mr. Arthur de C. Sowerby, of The China Journal of Science and Arts, "psycho-rhythmic dancing." The Bovingdons have evolved something with which they hope to revolutionise the entire social system, cleansing it of hypocrisy and freeing people from the evil moods which at times master them. The entire aim of the dances they are continually discovering and performing is to master moods instead of allowing moods to master them, and their frank, open, happy faces, their keen zest and enthusiasm, their utter freedom from all thoughts of irritation and the entire absence of self-consciousness that characterises them are proof of the success of their discovery with themselves, anyway.

Mr. and Mrs. Bovingdon, who are staying at the Hotel Plaza, arrived here from Peking the first of the week. This is their first visit to China although Mr. Bovingdon has been in the Orient before, first as professor of economics in Keio University, Tokio, and later as the principal of the American school in Tokio. A history of how this studious young man, well-versed in economics, philosophy and psychology, came to be a dancer of an entirely new school, is worth retailing as it was told by the dancer himself.

IMPORTANCE OF MOODS

"I always wanted to be an artist, not an economist," he said, "but I didn't know how. After I returned to America from Japan in 1919, I went with the American Woollen Co., as educational director. Following this prosaic rather than artistic work, I became a psychologist and specialised on mood psychology. I learned from psychology that the reason I had not become an artist, despite my intense yearning, was that I did not have sufficient creative moods or sufficiently intense creative moods. I was distracted from creating by outside moods of irritation, or worry, or a dozen other depressing manifestations of my lack of mood stability. In studying mood psychology I came upon the secret of how to cleanse the destructive moods of inhibitions and set the energy consumed by them free to take creative form. With this great discovery in mind, I travelled over the United States for a year giving free lectures on mood mastery.

"From that stage I went gradually to a study of mental or psycho-analysis and learned how to get at the very core of a bad mood which, after all, is some twisted experience whose memory remaining boils over constantly with us until we have conquered it. After my lectures I had classes which were a combination of psychology and rhythm. Part of the lesson was straight psychology and part psychology as applied to movement and motor reactions.

FINDING NEW BEAUTY

"I was combining in these exercises a rhythm of posture and tone, so that the dancers were called upon to get at the very soul of the mood form. They gave their mind and breath to the dance and the results were beautiful tone and posture pictures in which they were discovering a beauty in themselves they never knew existed.

"Still, I was not an artist, until one day I bethought myself of a quotation from Ruskin, 'Nothing great is ever created except in a mood of worship.' This thought really dovetailed with the thought of being an artist and I got together a group of people who would band together as religious dancers, and who would, in their dancing, have something more than the desire for self-expression. The small group who became interested in my idea conceived the notion that their dancing might express the creative thought form which is resident in each and every one of us, and that they might express God, rather than themselves, in their dancing. We made a sort of religion of being pagan; that is, pagan in the sense that we worshipped beauty and in beauty, God."

Mr. Bovingdon is a friend of Dr. Guthrie, the minister of St. Mark's-in-the-Bowery, New York, the church which came into prominence last year as the home of "sacred dancing," during services. Mr. Bovingdon's ideas approximate those of Dr. Guthrie's—he dances the Lord's prayer, the psalms, etc., and it is his assertion that his tones and postures can be understood by persons of many languages.

Again Movies Blamed For Life Of Crime

Another something for which the reformers may blame the movies!

Dong Kong-nyi knew his fellow countryman's failings. He advertised in a Chinese newspaper, seeking persons willing to go into the movies.

More than 200 men and women answered the ad. They applied at 30 Burkill Road before November 20. They were told to come back November 22.

But before they left the 200 were assessed $1 each to make the contract binding.

Came November 22 and came the 200. But no Dong. He had absconded.

Came November 24 and came back Dong. Then came a few of the 200 who had been keeping a watch on the house. They rushed into the front parlor and arrested Dong.

In Mixed Court yesterday he said he only worked at the house for two men named Tai and Wong and that he did not know where they had gone to.

Some of the 200 said Dong was the man to whom they paid their money. Mixed Court believe them and gave Dong two months.

WOMAN HURT IN LEAP AS ROBBER GANG INVADES HOME

Jumps Out Of Window To Escape Band Of Armed Men

$2,000 IS STOLEN

Fleeing Bandit Fires At Police Officer And Escapes

The wife of Zung Yoong-ling, an interpreter in the employ of Messrs. Musso and Fischer, attorneys, is in a serious condition as a result of injuries sustained Monday evening when she leaped from a window and crashed on the payment twenty-five feet below in order to escape a gang of armed robbers who had invaded her home at 430 Lloyd Road.

Jewelry and clothing valued at in excess if $2,000 was stolen by the robbers who ransacked the house thoroughly and stripped it of everything of value and severely beat the daughter of the household because she at first refused to give them the keys to a safe.

One of the robber gang, intercepted by a foreign police officer as he fled down Nanking Road, fired one shot at the constable and escaped by mingling in the crowd, the policeman being unable to return the bandit's fire owing to the presence of two foreign women nearby at the time.

THROTTLE HOUSEBOY

The robbers first made their appearance at the back door of the Zung home. A houseboy answered their knock, and when he opened the door he was immediately seized by the throat by one of the intruders and forced into a small room. In the meantime, about seven more robbers entered the place, all of them, according to witnesses, armed with pistols, although the police are inclined to believe that some were only imitation pistols.

Two of the bandits seized the cook and a maid and forced them into another room, while two more drove the amah upstairs to her mistress' room. Terrified by the amah's report, the mistress ran to an open window and flung herself down to the pavement of an adjoining alleyway. She was found there later, unconscious and bleeding and suffering from internal injuries. Her condition is regarded as extremely serious.

In the meantime, the robbers ransacked the house from one end to another. When the daughter of the household hesitated in producing the keys to the safe, one of Work is being rushed night and day at the new club now. Artisans are painting interior woodwork. Workmen are installing furniture. Books are being placed in the library. The cooks have tried out the new stoves. Heat was turned on in the new building Monday.

Not everything will be ready by Friday but the more necessary units will be in operation. The bowling alleys will be installed later as will the Turkish baths. Not all billiard tables will be ready because members have persisted in playing at the old quarters up until the last moment.

Plans Of Provisional Government At Peking Announced In Mandates

Chief Executive And State Ministers Will Carry On Until Permanent Government Is Founded; Existing Laws To Remain In Force

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Nov. 24.—Four mandates were issued by the Provisional Government this evening.

The first mandate says: "It is hereby proclaimed that the system of the Provisional Government of the Republic of China shall be as follows:

(1) The Provisional Government will have a Chief Executive, who will have supreme control of civil and military affairs and also of the Army and the Navy;

(2) The Chief Executive will act as the representative of the Republic in international affairs;

(3) The Provisional Government will have State Ministers to assist the Chief Executive in managing State affairs. All mandates and documents of the Provisional Government must be countersigned by the State Ministers;

(4) The Chief Executive will have the right to direct the State Ministers to control the following Ministries: Foreign Affairs, the Interior, Finance, War, the Navy, Justice, Education, Commerce and Agriculture, and Communications;

(5) The Chief Executive will have the right to command the State Ministers to hold a Cabinet meeting;

(6) This system will be carried into effect from the date of the proclamation, but will be declared null and void when a permanent Government is established."

The second mandate says that now that a Government is established the Chief Executive is obliged to accept the heavy responsibility of undertaking all political affairs awaiting settlement. Government officials, civil and military, in and out of Peking, must therefore carry out their functions with one accord in order to surmount difficulties.

The third mandate says that the aim of the reorganisation efforts of the Provisional Government is to reform politics and bring a new era of welfare to the people. This task is so great that it needs the most careful handling and therefore all the existing laws, except those which are incompatible with the Provisional Government or have been declared null and void by mandates, will continue in force.

In the fourth and last mandate, Marshal Tuan Chi-jui announces his assumption of the post of Provisional Chief Executive. He declares that he will do his best to cope with the difficulties of the present situation and sincerely to meet the wishes of the people, and expresses the hope that the officials and the people will unite to pave the way for political purification.

CONTRACT SUIT FOR $23,700 UP IN U. S. COURT

Testimony Is Taken In Action Brought Against Soochow Tile & Brick Co.

In the United States Court for China yesterday, before Judge Milton D. Purdy, Emile Henry sued the Soochow Brick and Tile Co. to recover the sum of $23,700 damages for the alleged breach of a contract of employment by which the plaintiff was engaged by the defendant for the purpose of acting as manager of the defendant's brick and tile making plant.

Mr. L. G. Husar appeared for the plaintiff, and Major C. P. Holcomb for the defendant.

The case for the plaintiff was that he was engaged as manager of the defendant's brick plant at a salary of $400 per month, with house, rising to $500 per month, with a bonus on profits, his service commencing on November 1, 1922, and that on May 10, 1923, he was wrongfully discharged. In the evidence which was taken in the early part of this year before the Commissioner, Mr. N. E. Lurton, the plaintiff stated that when he went to take over the plant he found himself unable to carry out the improvements he wished, that delays occurred through failure to supply him with all the requisites necessary for the installation of new machinery which the company had purchased, and the conflict of authority between himself and Dr. Snell, the president of the defendant company.

Yesterday was occupied in hearing the case for the defendants, on whose behalf, Dr. Snell testified that very shortly after Mr. Henry joined the company, he had occasion to complain of the manner in which the plaintiff did his work, and the way in which he overlooked details necessary for its proper performance, with the result that in April, 1923, the defendant company gave the plaintiff three months' notice of the termination of his contract, and on May 10 summarily dismissed him. Witness complained that plaintiff's work was inefficient and unsatisfactory.

The case was continued until this morning, for argument by counsel.

Undue Outside Influence Is Blamed For Strife By Canton Leader

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Kobe, Nov. 25.—Dr. Sun Yat-sen in an interview with representatives of the press said that the recent civil strife in China was attributable to undue outside influence, for example, the existence of unfair treaties enabling foreigners in China to perform improper actions, by which tools were made of a section of the military cliques. Wedding

DUNN—McCORMICK

A wedding of particular interest to Shanghai people took place yesterday morning when Miss Elsie McCormick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. McCormick, of Alameda, California, and Mr. Marshall Lloyd Dunn, son of Dr. and Mrs. Louis Dunn of Minneapolis, Minnesota, were married by Judge Milton D. Purdy, in the U. S. Judicial Chambers. Mr. W. B. Wilson witnessed the ceremony as United States consular representative.

Both the bride and groom are well-known in Shanghai. Mrs. Dunn, as Elsie McCormick, came to China first about four years ago and was employed as feature writer on THE CHINA PRESS. Her "Diary of Shanghai Baby" and her sketches of Shanghai life, "Audacious Angles on China," both of which appeared in THE CHINA PRESS, were gathered together in book form and achieved great popularity both here and in America. She went to the United States in the fall of 1922 and has been a feature writer on the Sunday editon of the New York "World" since that time. Mr. Dunn has been in the Educational Department of the publishing house of Edward Evans & Sons, Ltd.

The bride wore a charming dress of striped tobacco brown chiffon velvet, made on straight lines broken by flaring godets edged with Alaska squirrel, which was also used in barrel cuffs on the sleeves and for the high standing collar. Her hat was of black hatter's plush, with a graceful spray of osprey plumes. She wore beige stockings and gloves and black satin slippers, and carried a small bouquet of white carnations and roses.

Miss Ruth Benedict, who has been the bride's closest friend in Shanghai and to whom the book "Audacious Angles" is dedicated, was bridesmaid. She wore white georgette with touches of red embroidery and carried an old-fashioned posy. Mr. Hayden Nichols, of the Government Bureau of Economic Information, acted as best man.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception attended by only a few close friends was held in the apartment of Miss Clarice Moise, assistant editor of The China Journal of Science and Arts, where the health of the bride was proposed by Mr. Arthur de C. Sowerby, editor of the Journal. An innovation was introduced by Mrs. Dunn who threw her bouquet to the bachelors present. It was caught by Mr. Maurice Votaw, of St. John's University. Mr. and Mrs. Dunn then left by the P. & O. steamer "Karmala" for an extended trip which will include India, the Holy Land and the Near East, to Venice through Italy and France, thence to New York, where they will make their home.

Dr. Chatley Speaks On Ancestor Worship At B.W.A. Meeting

Dr. Herbert Chatley was the speaker of the afternoon at the meeting of the Literary Section of the British Women's Association. Dr. Chatley, who is an authority on Chinese subjects, discussed "Ancestor Worship," and this provided a rich field for both lecture and discussion afterwards.

Always a fascinating subject to the foreigner, in the capable hands of Dr. Chatley the many and varied phases of the worship which is at the root of Chinese life and which constitutes the fabric from which their entire social system is built, were revealed in new aspects to the hearers.

The Feng Shui, or the art of divination, was one of the most interesting topics of the lecture. Dr. Chatley related the importance to the Chinese of the proper placing of their dead so that the spiritual influences of the dead will work together with the forces of Nature for the benefit of the descendants. The art of the Feng Shui, who, through devious ways, learns the proper place to bury the dead, is a special one. But his art has caused endless trouble and complications, especially to foreigners in China who have wished to build railways, roads or houses and find their way blocked by the edict of the diviner that a grave shall be there and no other place. Additional complications ensue when it is remembered that, strictly speaking, the Chinese is supposed never to sell his land, except under the most extreme necessity. A clause that implies that the land is sold under conditions of extremity is inserted in every title deed.

HUMAN SACRIFICE

Another topic that was of special interest to his audience was that of human sacrifice to ancestors. Proof that human sacrifice was offered to the dead is traceable here and there in Chinese history, and it is known that sacrifices were offered to three emperors of the Chin dynasty—the first dynasty in which China, as the whole we know today, was unified.

The Chinese classics, according to Dr. Chatley, refer to this human sacrifice as a barbarous Tartar rite but Western scholars say that human sacrifices to the great dead were not uncommon. Even now, in funeral processions in Shanghai, modern city that it is, there are frequently seen large figures of slave girls or servants which are burnt in effigy at the funeral ceremony. The burning in effigy is indicative of the origin of the practice in actually burning human beings.

In referrng to the omnipresent Chinese "devils" Dr. Chatley stated that the only devils are ancestors without descendants, whose graves are uncared for. These wandering ancestors assume varying forms, vampires, ghouls, etc. The vampires of the Orient are endowed with the same evil attributes as those of the Western world; they are evil spirits who prey on the living. The ghouls are the spirits who prey on the dead, eating choice parts of the body to give themselves strength. The stone images of animals, especially the long avenues at the Ming tombs in Nanking, were erected and placed there especially for the purpose of consuming those ghouls who would prey upon the great dead.

JESUIT DISPUTE

The opposition of Christian religions to the ancestor worship was enlarged upon by Dr. Chatley who said that the Roman Catholic religion, which had made considerable headway in China several hundred years ago, was stopped dead by a controversy which ensued over the question of ancestor worship. The Jesuit missionaries allowed the Chinese to continue their worship of ancestors, taking the stand that the worship was merely ceremonial and did not partake of heresy. The Dominican missionaries, on the other hand, arrayed themselves against the practice, damning it as heretical in the highest degree. They appealed finally to the Pope who was persuaded to issue a decree forbidding Chinese converts to practice ancestor worship and on that rock Catholicism was split in China for years to come.

The Protestant missionaries are, as a whole, opposed to the practice and much trouble has ensued with their Chinese converts. Some missionaries have demanded that their converts burn or destroy the ancestral tablets which is the equivalent of asking a man to destroy his cherished portraits of a dead father and mother. Other missionaries have been more broad-minded in the matter and have had more success with converts.

"However, it is exceedingly doubtful," said Dr. Chatley, in conclusion, "if Christianity can ever succeed in China unless it can compromise on the point of ancestor worship."

The meeting was in the hands of Mrs. Hodge, who thanked Dr. Chatley for his interesting lecture and invited discussion and questions.

The next meeting of the section, and the subject and lecturer, will be announced later.

He ran to a foreign police officer who was at the corner of Nanking Road and Lloyd Road and pointed out the man. The police officer began to give chase, but the robber, aware that he was being pursued, turned and fired one shot at the officer, and then escaped by mingling in the crowds.

Mood Mastery Taught By 'Psycho-Rhythmic' Dancers

interested in religious dancing, Mr. Bovingdon founded "The Artists' Church" in Carnegie Hall, New York City, and in this temple of the dance, proceeded to show people how to free themselves of moods, and set their energy free in creative form, through the dance. He has had wonderful success and his methods are unique. For instance, he tells of a great personal friend, a young girl artist. Her work was fairly successful but lacked the vital touch that is the hall-mark of true art. She was persuaded by the Bovingdons to abandon hereself to the dance, to lose herself in rhythm and, literally, to so energise her actions that she would, literally, dance her painting. She obtained a long canvas and, armed with brushes and paints, began seriously to dance and paint at the same time, so that after a short while she was really painting on the canvas the creative self she was discovering in her dancing. The same was true of a violinist and a pianist.

Mr. Bovingdon describes a bad, destructive, depressing mood as a point at which one is imprisoned. As one learns to dance and discover new energy outlets, many roads are built away from the prison; and for each outlet, or dance, there is an escape from the evil mood, until finally imprisonment is impossible.

Education and religion have been trying for years to teach people to overcome their moods. Mr. Bovingdon does it with dancing.

They danced several times in Peking, at the Temple of Heaven, where they got at the spirit of religious dancing, they say, as never before. They also gave a temple fantasy, which was a dance-tone pageant of temple legends, each legend a dance, which was very well received at a Peking theater. They are gving a private showing today at the Carlton at 2 o'clock.

Wu's Native Town Reserves Opinion On His Downfall

(China Press Correspondence)

Laichow, Shantung, Nov. 15.—The people of this city have been in a rather peculiar predicament as a result of the defeat of Marshal Wu Pei-fu and the so-called "independence" of Shantung owing to the fact that Marshal Wu is a native of Laichow.

From Nov. 6 to 14, we were entirely without means of communication with the outside world owing to the stoppage of the motor cars which operate through here on the road between Chefoo and Waihsien. These were the days when Marshal Wu and his fleet were rounding the Shantung Peninsula and stopping at Chefoo, although we were without that information at the time. All motor cars which operate on the road were withdrawn from Chefoo at the time of Marshal Wu's presence there, doubtless as part of Shantung's neutrality, for this prevented Wu from entering the province.

The people of Laichow are very reserved and it is impossible to determine where their sympathies are in the present conflict. There seems to be general approval here of the action of the Peking Government in reducing the expenses of the Manchu House.

Extraterritorial Rights Discussed By Speakers At Meeting Of A.A.U.W.

The "Hospitality Center" at 18 Yuen Ming Yuen Road entertained the members of the Shanghai branch of the American Association of University Women at tea yesterday afternoon and later the meeting adjourned to the Foreign "Y" next door, where, following a short business session, Mr. J. B. Powell, Editor of THE CHINA PRESS, and publisher of the China Weekly Review and Mr. R. Y. Lo, editor of the Chinese Christian Advocate, gave foreign and Chinese interpretations of extraterritoriality.

Mr. Powell's extremely interesting talk dealt with the origin and history of extraterritoriality in China, with Chinese law, the various treaties made between foreign powers and China, the discussion of extraterritoriality at both the Paris Peace Conference and the Washington Conference, and the resolutions passed, and, finally, with a brief summary of the entire situation, especially in the light of recent events and the dissatisfaction of certain elements of the Chinese population with the existing foreign jurisdiction in China.

"When Americans and Britons first came to China they were perfectly willing to submit to Chinese law," said Mr. Powell, "as is evidenced by the records which show that in 1821 an American accidentally killed a Chinese woman and was turned over to the Chinese authorities for punishment. When, however, Caleb Cushing arrived at Macao as American Commissioner, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary, in 1844, a change ensued. Shortly after Cushing's arrival there occurred an incident which resulted in a mob fight in the city in which a Chinese was killed.

TREATY OF 1844

"The fight occurred as a result of Chinese superstitions about a flagpole erected near an American business house. Cushing held the Chinese responsible for not giving protection and in a letter to the Chinese authorities refused to give up the men responsible for the killing and said in effect that it would be necessary in the future for each side to accept responsibility for the actions of their respective nationals.

"A clause was inserted in the treaty of 1844 which said that subjects of China who may be guilty of any criminal act toward citizens of the United States shall be arrested and punished by the Chinese authorities according to the laws of China; and citizens of the United States who may commit any crime in China shall be subject to be tried and punished only by the consul or other public functionary of the United States thereto authorized according to the law of the United States; and in order to prevent all controversy and dissatisfaction, justice shall be equitably and impartially administered on both sides." Upon this treaty, executed between two nations, is based the whole fabric of what we know today as extraterritoriality.

"China really made her first extraterritorial treaty with Russia as far back as 1689, however, which is interesting in view of the fact that Russia was the first country to give up her privileges in the treaty signed this year.

"There was no vital protest on the part of the Chinese government until 1902 and 1903, as indicated in treaties between the United States and China, Great Britain and China, and Japan and China, when those countries agreed to give every assistance to China in its effort to reform its judicial system, and agreed also to relinquish extraterritorial rights when they were satisfied that the state of the Chinese laws, the arrangements for their administration and other considerations should warrant their so doing.

PARIS CONFERENCE

"At the Paris Peace Conference China made her first definite and public stand favoring the abolition of extraterritorial treaties. Her petition was refused, but at the Washington Conference, in 1921, the nine powers agreed to establish a commission, composed of one member from each country to inquire into extraterritoriality in China. This commission has never been in operation, however, because China herself asked for a postponement of the appointment of the commission, owing to the civil wars which stated soon after the Washington conference, and have continued intermittently ever since."

Mr. Powell outlined some of the abuses of extraterritoriality, notably the registration of Chinese with various consuls enjoying extraterritorial privileges, the uncertainty and conflict of foreign laws applied here, and the further difficulty of a situation in which there are many important nations, about nine in number, including Russia, Germany, Austria, Bolivia, Persia, Poland, Argentine, Turkey, etc., who do not have these extraterritorial powers.

Mr. R. Y. Lo, in discussing the situation from the Chinese point of view, referred to extraterritoriality as a survival of an antiquated system of personal sovereignty and said that, properly, extraterritoriality is without the pale of international law. He stated that the system is no longer satisfactory as the China of today is very changed and different from the China when the first extraterritorial treaties were made. He said also there were too many disadvantages arising from the uncertainty of the law in civil matters, cited the disparity of punishments, and the lack of certainty of puishment in many cases for foreign offenders. The great expense to the Chinese who become involved in legal disputes and find it necessary to travel to the nearest consular court for justice, the matter of obtaining witnesses, in accord with Western law, etc., were all enumerated by him as hardships resulting from extraterritoriality.

NATIONAL HUMILIATION

One interesting statement made by Mr. Lo was to the effect that cases of abusive violence of foreigners against Chinese would cease altogether if the foreigners were compelled to go to a Chinese court.

"The extra legal right of extraterritoriality is a national humiliation," said the Chinese speaker, "in the eyes of the Chinese people. Were extraterritoriality abolished there would be removed the greatest obstacle to mutual understanding and good-will between the Chinese and the foreigners. Its abolition would also tend to remove the suspicion that foreign missionaries are the vanguard of Western imperialism.

"You may ask what is to be done about the bandits if extraterritoriality is abolished? As a matter of fact the foreigners will not be exposed to so much danger, as the bandits are not anti-foreign but capture foreigners now for ransom or to embarrass the government.

"You may also argue that were it not for the extraterritorial privileges which Shanghai enjoys there would have been no refuge for Chinese war refugees, but I believe that if Chinese and foreigners had been living side by side, without any such privileges, pressure might have been brought to bear to prevent war altogether!"

The business of the meeting was brief. Miss Cross, vice-chairman, presided in the absence of Mrs. Lacy, who is ill. Mrs. Eveleth read the minutes of the last previous meeting and the more recent "progressive dinner" meeting. Miss Lienard read the treasurer's report and Mrs. Vanderburgh, the list of new members, which was quite long. Mrs. McRae, of the group of Eastern colleges in charge of the program, introduced the speakers. A resolution was passed offering condolences to Mr. E. W. Wallace upon the death of his wife, a member of the College Club.

Ultraviolet Rays Rickets Remedy In Yale Tests

The discovery that certain foods are sources of ultraviolet rays and possess ultraviolet activity, and the opening of a new field of research has been made recently by Dr. Irvine McQuarrie and Dr. I. Newton Kugelmass, of the department of pediatrics, in the Yale Medical School.

The findings resulted from efforts to establish the existence of analogous qualities in sunlight and cod liver oil, both cures for rickets, according to the "The Yale Alumni Weekly."

The "Weekly" explains:

"Seemingly there is no connection between radiant energy and cod liver oil, and yet it has been proved that in their action on rickets the results of these two therapeutic agents are indistinguishable. It is the relation between the two which Drs. Kugelmass and McQuarrie set out to find, stimulated by the researches of Dr. E. A. Park, head of the department, and his associates, who have made contributions to the elucidation of the rickets problem.

"Recent research had demonstrated that mercury vapor light passed through quartz prevents and cures rickets exactly as does natural sunlight; and since that process produces ultraviolet rays it was readily deducible that it is these invisible cold rays in sunlight which exercise the observed curative effects upon rickets. That fact being established, it remained to learn whether cod liver oil, when taken internally, likewise gave off ultraviolet emanations. If this could be shown it would prove that ultraviolet rays cure rickets.

"Here, with the touch of poetry, enters the humble firefly to play his part in the drama of discovery. This insect's cold light is manufactured by the oxidation of a substance in an alkaline medium, producing visible light rays. Would the same chemical reaction, applied to substances curative of rickets, produce invisible ultraviolet rays? Numerous experiments proved this to be the case.

"Among the substances known to cure rickets are cod liver oil, egg yolk, bile, sperm oil and others. All these were oxidised and specially prepared photographic plates screened by quartz filters and exposed to the substances so treated unmistakably indicated the presence of ultraviolet light. On the negative side, analogous but non-rickets-curing substances, such as linseed, peanut and cottonseed oil and others, were similarly oxidised, but showed no evidences of ultraviolet rays upon identical photographic plates. The curative powers upon rickets of this particular group of energy rays was demonstrated, and Drs. Kugelmass and McQuarrie had proved their case."

THE JEWETT SIX BROUGHAM

THE fine art of coach building is perpetuated in the Jewett Six Brougham, without excessive cost, by the improved definite methods of Jewett engineers. All the beauty, grace, and sturdiness are retained and all the mistakes and guess work of the rule of thumb are eliminated. This engineering accomplishment has brought the Jewett Brougham a full five seater with all the luxurious roominess necessary for complete comfort, with the added convenience of a commodious, strong and well made trunk, as well as many other appointments, within the reach of the ordinary purse.

The steel panels are finished with a new process of permanent oven baked enamel on extra-strong wood body frame. Never before has it been possible to obtain this desirable finish on a wood frame, but Jewett methods now make it possible.

However, it is not only the outward appearance, beautiful though it is, that must be considered. The inside mechanism of the Jewett will bear the most rigid inspection and only after such inspection can one understand why the Jewett Brougham is a superior motor car.

Arrange for a trial run and be your own judge.

SHANGHAI A.A.U. MAY BE FORMED; WIDE ACTIVITIES

Harriers' Club Winds Up After Six Years Of Work; Final Meeting

The formation of an Amateur Athletic Union for Shanghai is now being promoted here. Messrs. F. S. Bridges, Tom McKenna and other parties prominent in amateur athletics here are working towards this, and with the present development of sports now noted in Shanghai it seems a most likely project. Such an association, it is felt, would put athletics on a higher plane in this city. It would be fitting for foreigners and Chinese to come together in athletic contests, and with the new Pioneer Field in existence this could be done, if athletic meets could be staged there.

This proposal came in connection with the winding up of the Shanghai Harriers Club at its annual general meeting last Friday evening, when it was decided to bring this association to a close, and try to form a club or association here which would be of an international character and devoted to the promotion of amateur athletics of all kinds.

Many will regard with regret the end of the Harriers, which for the past six years has been the general center of cross-country running in Shanghai, and has done much in the promotion of this splendid form of athletics. It was thable, however, to attract the big fields of runners which make the sport most interesting for many, and it is now proposed to form a new association on a wider basis, with cross-country running as a feature but by no means its main aim, and efforts are now being directed towards this end.

LAST MEETING OF HARRIERS

The annual general meeting of the Club took place at the Rowing Club last Friday evening. Mr. F. S. Bridges presided, being supported by Messrs. G. Rose, R. S. MacMillan, R. A. Atkinson and others.

The Hon. Sec., Mr. T. McKenna, presented his annual report, in which he remarked on the promising young runners who had joined the Club, all of whom showed that the material was there and all that it wanted was developing. He pointed out that if the weekly runs were to be continued it was necessary for the senior members to turn out in greater numbers to assist in coaching the junior men, and to foster the spirit of sportmanship so necessary for the promotion of pure amateur athletics.

Several handicaps were run off during the season, and these were won by Messrs. Reneman, H. Faracho, J. Pilley, and Harold Atkinson. The novice championship was won by J. Azevedo, who gave a capital display. The Club championship was won by G. Rose.

The students' cross-country race attracted a splendid entry of 37 runners—a record for the Club—the runners representing many schools and colleges. The American School won the team championship with the magic score of 13 points, the runner-up being the Shanghai Public School. The individual champion was E. Pilley of the American School.

Congratulations were extended to club members who won championships, G. A. Johanssen the 440 yards sprint and F. A. Remedios the 1 mile walk.

It was hoped that all members would support the International Walk. It was a splendid exercise, and there was nothing better to keep a man fit and in training.

The Hon. Secretary said that the Club had a balance on the right side, though there were many members who had omitted to send in their subscriptions for the season.

It had been suggested that an entirely new Club be formed embracing other forms of athletics besides cross-country running, it being found that cross-country running out here was not sufficiently attractive to get out the big fields of runners which is the case at home, without which fields cross-country running loses a deal of its interest.

The chairman, Mr. Bridges, spoke on athletics generally. Having been a member of the Club since its inception he reviewed its activities, and suggested that the time had come when a Shanghai Amateur Athletic Association should be formed for the promotion of all kinds of athletics. Meetings of an international character might be held in which all nationalities could compete, and with the Chinese, who had taken up athletics in a serious manner of late years, some first class meeting might be held. It was also suggested that an effort be made to obtain the use of the Pioneer Field.

A general discussion took place, after which a vote of the members was taken and it was decided to wind up the Shanghai Harriers Club, with a view to the promotion of a new club or association in Shanghai which should be of an international character and devoted solely to the promotion of purely amateur athletics of all kinds.

The prizes won during the cross-country season were presented during the evening. At the conclusion of the meeting a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Tom McKenna, the Club secretary, for the work which he had done in the interest of amateur athletics here.

SPLENDID WORK DONE

The Club during the time has trained hundreds of young athletes, and has done splendid match, next month an effort will work. After the big walking be made to stage some cross-country runs. The support of Bob MacMillan, the splendid Scottish Cross-Country International, has been promised, and Tom McKenna, faithful as always, will assist him as coach. The winding up of the Harriers Club does not mean that cross-country running will cease here.

SANTOS & SENCIO, FILIPINO CHAMPS, ARE COMING HERE

Feather And Flyweight Title Holders Will Meet Shanghai Fighters

Tenebro Santos and Clever Sencio, featherweight and flyweight titleholders of the Philippines, respectively, are coming to Shanghai within the next couple of weeks, and will meet the best boys available here in their respective divisions.

Santos is a splendid featherweight, and is generally regarded as the Philippine champion, with only one or two serious competitors for the title. He is considered decidedly better than Johnny Hill, our own champ here, who, however, he has never met, he considering Johnny too small fry for him. Santos is an experienced fighter, fast and clever, and will meet the best of the featherweights here. Garcia is the boy who is logically entitled to fight Santos, particularly if Johnny Hill fails to turn up soon. Nothing has been heard from Johnny recently.

Clever Sencio is a real flyweight champ, recognised as the premier flyweight of the whole Orient. At the present time his right to the title is being disputed by Kid Cobarrubias, who in a scrap at Cebu November 1 won from the champion, who was four pounds overweight. This did not affect the title, as both boys were over the flyweight limit.

Sencio is regarded by many in the Philippines as fully the equal of the champ, Pancho Villa, and it is said that he is the one man whom the flyweight champ declines to meet. This, in our opinion, is stretching it a bit too far, but Sencio has his backers who will swear to it, and he is certainly a high-class fighter, one of the best who have come to Shanghai so far. He will probably be matched with Alberto, who at present fights a bit over the flyweight limit, but may still be able to make the weight. Young Domingo is another boy who may meet him, and if Kid Gabo turns up to defend his title Sencio would probably not have the slightest objections to taking it from him.

Basketball Notes

The American Co., S.V.C., is getting its basketball team into shape for the League, which starts its regular schedule next Monday evening at the Pioneer Pavilion. Dr. Swan is coach, and the squad from which the team will be drawn is as follows:

Caldwell, Neal, Erickson, Nahmmacher, Porterfield, Tinkham, Canda, Roberts, Raven, Schloss, C. E. Ollerdessen, Portrude, Henningsen and Enders.

This being the Company's initial season, the squad has no great hopes of winning the League championship. A start has been made, however, and while the material is mostly inexperienced, it is at least enthusiastic. Unfortunately, there was some delay in the correspondence between the League and the Company, and information was received so late that a number of the best players in the Company had already affiliated with other teams.

The squad is meeting for practice every Tuesday and Friday at 5:30 p.m., at the Pavilion. Candidates are still being taken on.

The Chinese Amateurs will have a return match with the U.S.S. Penguin quintet this evening at 7:30 in Y.M.C.A. gymnasium. The sailors were defeated by a score of 26-21 last Saturday, and are ready to give a like treatment to the Chinese tonight.

Polo Booming In Argentine Since Olympic Triumph

Buenos Aires, October 26.—The recent triumph of an Argentine polo team in the Paris Olympic meeting, thereby winning the world Olympic championship in polo for Argentina, has intensified to a great extent public interest in the game which first began to be shown during the successful tour of an Argentine four in the United States and Great Britain two years ago. Until quite recently polo was practically unheard of by the general public here as few persons outside players and their friends took much interest in the game. Polo is now played in nearly all the Argentine cavalry regiments and is being taken up enthusiastically by Argentine ranchers.

The game was first played in Argentina among British ranchers settled in the country. What is considered to be the first match was played as far back as 1875 in North Argentina. The game was stopped by local police on the grounds that it was too dangerous a pastime. Native peons entrusted with the care of polo ponies have shown themselves excellent players and many leading polo authorities here believe that more than one team could be formed among the cowboys quite able to defeat the Olympic champions.

The interests of polo in Argentina are looked after by the Argentine Polo Association, to which the principal polo clubs of the country are affiliated. President Alvear is honorary president of this organisation. An annual championship and many tournaments are held under the auspices of the Association which attract entries from polo clubs in the interior of Argentina and from the cavalry regiments and others.

Lindrum's Break Of 1,219 Sets Billiard Mark For England

Details of the billiard game in which Walter Lindrum, Australian, defeated Claude Falkiner, Englishman, by 16,000 to 15,175 at Sydney recently stamp the contest as the greatest in the history of the English style of play. Lindrum made a break of 1,219 and Falkiner one of 1,001, while Lindrum averaged 108 for the entire game and Falkiner 39. Never since the spot stroke was abolished more than thirty years ago have two players compiled a break of 1,000 or more in the same game.

The averages also constitute a new world record, displacing the figures of 102½ and 97.80 made respectively by Willie Smith, former champion, and Tom Newman, champion, at Newcastle on March 1 last in a full match of 16,000 points.

When Dreaded Croup Comes

A thing of dread, that comes in the night without warning. Just a hoarse, metallic cough, a choking, gasping for breath, a threat of suffocation. Oh! the relief of knowing that there is a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house. See how it clears away the choking phlegm, stops the hoarse cough, and brings rest and sleep to the little sufferer. Sold everywhere.

British Co. "B" Monthly Shoots

The September, October, and November Monthly Cup Competitions of the "B" Company British, S.V.C., were held on Monday, under ideal conditions except for a sharp northeast wind. Sergeant Davie was high gun in all three shoots, however, he kept down his net score. In the November shoot, however, he made a perfect score of 40, and therefore won a leg on the Class "A" Cup. His shooting was very fine throughout.

American School Notes

The High School football team is to play Mr. Graham's Chinese boys from Yencheng, November 29, on the Pioneer field. Students will be admitted free; others will have to pay $1 admittance, which will go toward paying the expense of the Chinese team. Mr. Graham expects his eleven to be much better than last year's, so an exciting game is expected. Everybody is invited to come out and "root."

Preparations for Thanksgiving are being made full speed. Partners for the grand Thanksgiving dinner are being arranged and the program for the evening made out. We intend to have a grand old time—one can do a lot in a day of holiday.

November 28, the day after Thanksgiving, a very interesting experiment is to be carried out here at the school. Pupils will take charge of the classes and fill the executive position during the day—no one person being allowed to hold more than one office. Each class has chosen its own teacher, and this person will get experience and the teacher may receive valuable hints as to the best method of teaching.

The executives have been chosen by the Senate, a person holding an office for one or two periods consecutively. In the case of business manager and secretary; the girls or boys will, simply observe, as it would be impossible to really take either position.

The students and teachers are all looking forward to this event, and it is hoped that a spirit of co-operation will be shown by all.

It has been voted by the cabinet that all high school students receiving a mark of 95 or above will be excused from the term examinations in that subject. This was one of the suggestions handed in to the Senate for the improvement of student life. All the students are in favor of this new rule: it is another incentive for studying harder.

Saturday night, Nov. 22, "The Messenger from Mars" and two reels of "Penrod" were shown at the school.

The long-haired girls in high school have formed a club, whose chief occupation seems to be playing basket ball. On Wed., Nov. 19, they challenged and defeated the "Dutch Cuts" with a score of 12-9. The "bobs with hair parted on the side" have in turn challenged them, and the game will be played off on Monday, Nov. 24. There will be plenty of rooters for both sides.

The first music recital of the year was held at 3:15 on Wednesday, Nov. 19, in the Assembly Hall. The program was divided into two parts: grade students and then high school. There were both piano and violin selections. Many students were present, and some parents and friends were guests. The public are cordially invited to the next recital, which promises an interesting program.

CHINESE-AMERICAN GAME

By Corky Grafton

Those interested in American football (American Rugby) in the Orient will be glad to hear that tickets for the Chinese-American game are now on sale at one dollar each for foreign nationalities, and twenty cents each for Chinese. The tickets are purchasable at Squires Bingham Company, The Chocolate Shop, Navy "Y", and Chinese "Y". The game is to be played next Saturday, Nov. 29, at the Pioneer Field. It is hoped that a large and appreciative attendance of local enthusiasts will enable the management to meet the expenses of bringing down this team and other costs.

U. S. Business Featured By Contradictory Status

The business situation in the United States at the end of October was as full of contradictory features as was the case four months ago, according to reports from the U. S. Department of Commerce to Shanghai, just received. The volume and activity of general trade has contracted with industrial operations, which still remain below normal notwithstanding substantial increases since January. There are no clearly defined indications of immediate country-wide improvement.

The New York money market is unchanged. The rate on commercial paper at the end of October was for 3 percent to 3½ percent; on call money from 2 percent to 2½ percent. The stock market it distinctly weak and irregular pending the termination of political uncertainties. The bond market is active.

September commercial failures decreased 10 percent as compared with August.

STOCKS LOW

Stocks of merchandise are generally low; department store sales are unchanged. The index number for wholesale prices during September was 149; for fatuil food prices 147.

Sales of life Insurance advanced.

Building construction activity continues above that of a year ago.

Financial Notes: September bank clearances in 186 cities totalled $16,000,000,000, which represents a 9 percent gain over the figure of a year ago.

United States customs receipts during September amounted to $50,000,000, an increase of 10 percent.

The note circulation at the end of October was $5,700,000,000; the ratio of reserves to deposits and note circulation was 79 percent. During October the earning assets of the Federal Reserve decreased by $59,000,000; the reserves decreased by $26,000,000; the total of discounted bills decreased by $45,000,000. Discounted bills secured by government obligations decreased by $11,000,000.

GOOD WEATHER

Agriculture: The agricultural credit corporation is concentrating its attention on the problem of profitable farm diversification. Rural credit banks continue to reopen. Farmers are refraining from unnecessary luxury expenditures and the liquidation of farm debts is progressing steadily. The weather is favorable for their crops.

The foreign demand for wheat is persistent, although prices are now erractic as compared with the decided upward trend in evidence last month. The reduced wheat and corn yield in Canada and the Argentine continues to give strength to the market. Europe is making first inquiries for American corn. There is a heavy demand for rye and Mineapolis flour.

Keen interest is being shown in Seattle on the reported Japanese proposal to increase the duty on wheat and flour by 100 percent in December. Shipments of wheat from Seattle to the Orient during the first nine months of this year amounted to 800,000 bushels.

COTTON GOOD

Cotton: Prospects for the cotton crop continue favorable; stocks are moving rapidly due to the stimulating demand arising out of improved European conditions. The consumption of domestic mills is increasing, and prices are being maintained at a high level. The price on October 31st was 23 cents. The outlook for Southern mills is better, although the industry in New England continues severely depressed. Cotton finishers are operating at 64 percent capacity against 61 percent last year. The total raw cotton stock on September 30th was 2,600,000 bales.

Rice: Rice shipments are increasing and stocks are low. It is estimated that rice crop is practically 80 percent of normal, amounting to 32,000,000 bushels as against 23,000,000 bushels a year ago, and 42,000,000 bushels as the average for the last five years.

Tobacco: The tobacco crop will amount to in the neighborhood of 1,180,000,000 pounds, a decrease of 21 percent as compared with last year.

GAIN IN STEEL

Steel: The actual September steel gains were inconsiderable. The United States Steel Corporation reported larger orders, but this was offset to an extent by the fact that those of independent producers were less. Steel prices have become tangled in the process of being readjusted to the new prices bases and the new phases which competition has developed since abolishment of the Pittsburgh plan. Chicago is maintained as the steel center of the middle and central states. There is a movement taking form on the part of the independent producers to petition the interstate commerce commission for a revision of normal freight rates.

Structural steel, pig iron and steel ingot production is increasing slowly; ingot operations are now at 60 percent capacity. On October 1st, total unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation amounted to 3,500,000 tons.

Automotive: The automobile industry reports that both retail prices and deliveries have slightly improved, and that a very close adjustment is being maintained between output and immediate sales.

RUBBER ACTIVE

Rubber: The rubber market is active. Stocks are depleted on account of advancing prices and increased tire manufacture.

Salmon: Buying of salmon during October was stimulated by stiffening prices. It is estimated that about 85 percent of the pack has been marketed.

Lumber: The movement of lumber throughout the country seem generally improved. The West Lumber Association reports unfilled export orders of 89,000,000 feet, and unfilled domestic orders of 133,000,000 feet. Shipments still however, remain much below production.

September production of Douglas fir amounted to 280,000,000 feet as against 290,000,000 feet in September as against 495,000,000 feet in August. September pine production all kinds, amounted to 106,000,000 feet as against 69,000,000 feet in August; shipments of pine were slightly below production in each month.

LUMBER VARIES

The Seattle lumber market during September is reported as dull; during the first week of October shipments from Portland to Japan have been unusually heavy, but those to China still light. Sustained business with Japan is considered to be dependent upon augmented purchasing power of the yen.

Leather: The leather market is showing a firmer tone; sides continue strong, and there is increasing activity in the shoe industry.

Newsprint: Production of newspaper print is increasing, although reports are slightly decreasing.

Oil: Crude oil production is also on the increase; gasoline prices are the lowest in ten years.

Tin: The tin market is unchanged, the supply adequate.

Silver: Bar silver was priced on October 31st at 69¾ cents.

SILK WEAK

Silk: The consumption of raw silk is reported at 36,000 bales, the highest figure attained since April 1923. Prices are thought to be weakening. Imports of raw silk during the month came to 49,000 bales, while stocks on October 1st were 42,000 bales. The silk goods market is increasingly active.

Likewise the September sales of artificial silk were reported to be record-breaking. Prices unchanged.

Wool: Wool imports are increasing and exports small Stocks are depleted and the market firm. Rug and carpet mills are operating at 80 percent capacity.

Apples: The northwestern apple crop is still estimated to be below normal.

The foreign trade of the United States during the month of September returned a favorable balance of $140,000,000. The total export and import figures were respectively $428,000,000 and $288,000,000.

Exports from the United States to the Philippines totalled $5,300,000; imports from the Philippines totalled $6,400,000; the balance of trade in favor of the islands was therefore $1,100,000.

Preference Plan For Empire Trade Is Backed By Government

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 24.—Mr. L. S. Amery, the Secretary of State for the Colonies, at a luncheon of the Empire Producers' Association today, announced that the Government would carry out the 1923 Imperial Conference's preferences and hinted that there were opportunities within the general fiscal system of Britain to give further extensions and preferences. The Government would also aim, he said, at clearing the channels of Empire trade, which were choked with various preferences and vested interests.

Honan Province Far From Normal

(China Press Correspondence)

Kaifeng, Honan, Nov. 18.—General Chang Fu-lai, Tuli of Honan, entered Kaifeng, the capital, last night on a special train from Chengchow. It is reported that there are many troops at Chengchow awaiting orders from the proper superior. At that city and at Kaifeng precautions have been taken against looting and it is now believed with the Tuli back at his post there will be none. All the machinery for taking care of women and children in case of looting has been set up. Chinese and foreigners are working together in this matter.

It has not yet been learned here whether Marshal Feng's appointee for the civil governor of Honan, Gen. Sun Yo, will come or if so when. If he comes it may cause complications. Some look for a battle momentarily near Chengchow or on the Yellow River just north. Changtefu has also been named as a likely scene for a conflict.

It is predicted that it will take all winter before conditions return to normal here.

Dr. Sowerby Will Exhibit Salamanders At Lecture Thursday

In order to inject proper local color into his lecture on "Giant Salamanders in China," Mr. Arthur De C. Sowerby, the well-known scientist, has purchased $50 worth of real, live, giant salamanders, which he will exhibit at his lecture on Thursday, November 27, at the Royal Asiatic Hall, in Museum road.

Mr. Sowerby's salamanders are on view in his office, the editorial rooms of the China Journal of Science and Arts, in the Ben Building, and it is hoped they will not become entangled in the typewriters, somewhat after the manner of the now-famous Shanghai snake which did that very thing, and hold up the next volume of the Journal.

The lecture on Thursday is under the auspices of the Royal Asiatic Society, and will be at the usual hour.

—Elinor Fair, noted for her work in "Driven" and "Has The World Gone Mad."

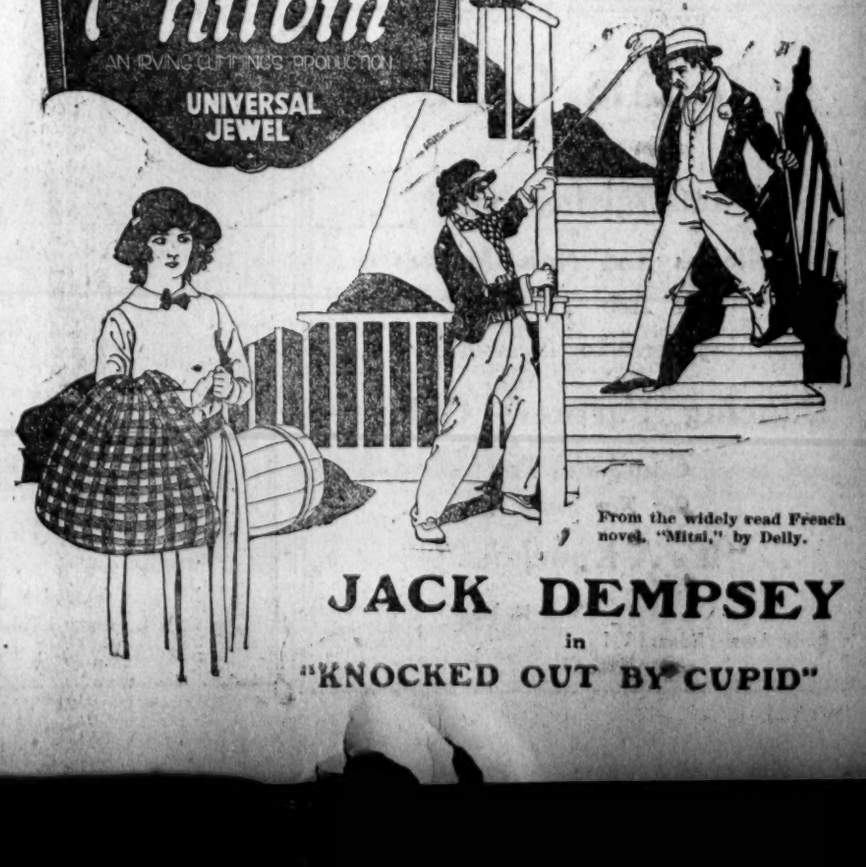
MARY PHILBIN
THE BEAUTIFUL "MERRY GO ROUND" GIRL IN HER LATEST and GREATEST PICTURE

Carl Laemmle presents
The Rose of Paris
Starring Mary Philbin
AN IRVING CUMMINGS PRODUCTION
UNIVERSAL JEWEL

The love story of a little convent rose transplanted to the very heart of The Devil's Garden.

City of bright lights and dark shadows. Of gaieties and sorrows. Of dreams and crimes! The convent and the mansion! The glittering boulevard! The Apache-haunted cafe!

Upon the gorgeous canvas of pre-war Paris and Vienna is depicted one of the loviest romances of all time. With the beloved heroine of "Merry Go Round" as a little convent girl, suddenly plunged into the vortex of Parisian night life, to find happiness only at the end of a long road of trial and temptation.



From the widely read French novel, "Mitsi," by Delly.

JACK DEMPSEY in "KNOCKED OUT BY CUPID"

Luck Of Lieutenant Osborne Wood Changes

Lieutenant Osborne C. Wood, son of Governor General Wood of the Philippines, who gained nearly world-wide fame this year when the story of his "killings" on various Wall Street deals was told, is dropping some of that money in Paris "exchange" shops, according to advices from Paris yesterday.

Lieutenant Wood was reported having cleaned up more than $1,000,000 gold, playing the market from Manila via cabled tips. He resigned his army commission after the story was revealed.

But the Paris God of Chance is no as favorable to Young Wood, so the stories go, and he is said to have recently parted with quite a few francs at the Circle Haussman, a palatial establishment presided over by the opulent "Andro," a former funeral mummer.

Young Wood is merely doing in Paris as they do in Paris. The French capital is said to be wide open with many temples of gambling running where thousands of francs change hands nightly, most of them going from the players to the house. Roulette and faro are barred by law but such games of skill as poker, bridge, baccarat and chemin de fer lose and win enormous amounts of money for customers, the majority of them Americans.

Another story is going the rounds apropos of the little Emperor. It is related that of the three or four Foreign Ministers who speeded to China's Foreign Office to inquire what had happened and to voice their concern, one was specially vehement. "I shall hold you personally responsible," he thundered at China's representative. A quiet man sitting in the corner, who heard about it all afterwards, remarked that it would be interesting to witness exactly how personal responsibility would be established in this particular case seeing that sixteen Treaty Powers were unable to keep open a railway along a stretch of road measuring 85 miles and ending at their doorsteps.

Even the dullest people are noticing that something's wrong with Peking. The streets, which used to be lively enough with motorcars doing their 30 miles an hour, are now given over to the proletariat hawking rags; while the Yamens, each of which used to shelter hundreds of clerks and officials speculating on what the day would bring forth, even if they did not work, are deserted. A coup d'etat is all very well in its way, but it does lower the town's vitality, says the "Far Eastern Times."

Parenthood will soon have to be licensed just as today plumbers and barbers must obtain licenses to certify they are capable, according to Dr. Hornell Hart, professor of social economy in Bryn Mawr College, speaking before the state meeting of the American Association of University Women. He said: "The race is fast going down hill, and the deterioration cannot be checked until scientific methods of reproducing the race are resorted to. Persons least able, intellectually and materially, to provide for children are having 'rafts of them' and persons qualified to surround their children with the proper environment are having very few."

Much interest has been shown by scientists in the assertion made recently that dust from granite, with which most of Vienna's street are paved, has been responsible for an increase in the number of cases of tuberculosis. After investigation the municipality deemed it advisable to tar and oil the streets, and this has greatly reduced the amount of granite dust in the air. City health authorities assert that aside from a general improvement in the state of health of the Viennese, the outlay will be more than made up by the decreased demands on public hospitals and physicians of charitable organisations, who are paid by the State.

France And Germany: The Loan And The Commercial Negotiations

The Manchester Guardian prints from its correspondents in Paris and Berlin important despatches showing the remarkable change in the attitude of French financiers towards Germany, the progress of the negotiations between the two countries for a commercial treaty, and the German view of the economic position of France in her trading with Germany. We print these despatches side by side.

AFTER 50 YEARS

Paris, Oct. 13.—Two further steps in the development of Franco-German relations were recorded last week. One is the determination of French bankers to participate in the German 800,000,000-gold mark loan to the extent of 23,000,000. The other is the successful conclusion of the first phase of the negotiations for a commercial treaty or modus vivendi. Naturally there is much more satisfaction over the second than the first announcement, but they both indicate the revolution in French policy towards Germany since six months or a year ago.

The flotation of a portion of the German loan involves the listing for the first time in fifty years of German State bonds on the Paris Bourse. It is not at all certain whether the public will subscribe the issue, but that there should be any such issue at all is significant. In order to avoid exchange troubles the loan, though a sterling one, will be offered in francs, the banks producing the sterling from their own existing resources and being guaranteed by the Government upon a fixed rate of exchange, probably 85. Apparently the bonds will not be admitted to the London market before the lapse of two years, but that, of course, will not prevent foreign purchase of them on the Paris market. As they will rise if the franc rate on London declines, they must, sooner or later, offer all the attractions of international securities. It is quite likely, therefore, that the German 1924 bonds will by their quotation cast unenviable light upon the standing of the French ones. Incidentally, several of the latter registered new low records a day or two ago, the Perpetual Threes falling below 51.

The French bankers, it is explained here, agree to take up a share of the loan in response to pressure from the Government and in evidence of good faith in the new Reparations settlement. The pressure came originally, however, from the Anglo-American bankers, especially the American, and, if my information is correct, there is reason to believe the French consent was not entirely divorced from the question of a French loan in New York.

As for the Franco-German commercial negotiations, it is striking proof of the new spirit on both sides of the Rhine that, while English and Belgians should have been compelled to suspend conversations with the Germans, the French have succeeded in attaining with them an agreement in principle. The Germans, is stated, have accepted the idea of minimum French tariff rates on products especially interesting German exporters and abandoned the demand for most-favored-nation treatment, which France under her tariff laws cannot give. At the same time they have agreed to allow most-favored-nation treatment to France. As for the prolongation of the privileges allowed under the Treaty of Versailles to products of Alsace-Lorraine, the question does not seem to have been settled, but the lines of a compromise are already visible in the statement that certain facilities are assured to the metallurgical industry and the wine-growers in return for other concessions on the part of the French. Further negotiations have been postponed until November 5.

So far so good. But of the formidable struggle that will come when details have to be discussed there can be no doubt. For instance, among the concessions said to be in prospect on the part of France are facilities for importation of German electrical equipment and machine tools, and French makers of the latter are already getting alarmed. Ease of admission into Germany of Lorraine iron and steel will scarcely compensate them. There is obvious dread here of German competition when once the credit stringency shall have passed, and the fact that prices are rising here while they tend to fall in Germany makes that dread increase. The idea of a modus vivendi gains ground, therefore, for in that case in a year's time or less it would be possible to appreciate the pace of German revival and make provision against any danger of the French markets being swamped.

THE TRADE BALANCE

Berlin, Oct. 10.—The German delegation is in a strong position from an economic point of view in the Franco-German trade negotiations now being carried on in Paris. Under present conditions, Germany can dispense with France as a market much more easily than France can dispense with Germany. According to German statistics, France exported goods into Germany to the value of 620 million paper francs in the first quarter of 1924, while German exports to France only amounted to about one-seventh of this—namely, 85 million paper francs. The Lorraine iron industry and the Alsatian textile industry, both lost to Germany under the Versailles Treaty, always found their market entirely in German territory. In addition, the French market is saturated with industrial products, so that there are other branches of French industry which are also absolutely dependent on the German market. Since the war France has displaced Great Britain as the most important source of German's textile supplies, and she now accounts for 35 percent of the total. French textile imports into Germany average 204 million marks a month; more than half of this, viz., 112 million marks, consists of Alsatian cotton cloth, cotton yarns accounting for a further 20 million marks, and woollen cloths for 33.8 millions. British textile imports to Germany only amount to 152.9 million marks.

France has sought to strengthen her weak position by passing certain legislation various details of which she would be prepared to surrender in exchange for the right of duty-free importation into Germany from Alsace-Lorraine. German exports to France are not only liable to the French maximum tariff and to certain additional charges, but are expected also to be burdened in future with the 26 percent reparation levy. There is no inclination in Germany to give way to French demands, though it is considered necessary to come to some sort of agreement with France, lest France should seize by open or disguised force or arbitrary action in the occupied territories such advantages as she cannot obtain by negotiations. Germany would like to obtain most-favored-nation treatment in her treaty negotiations with France and all the other Allies, but this is impossible in the case of France, as under the 1919 legislation France only concludes minimum rate agreements in particular cases. The incentive to German concessions is the security from fresh violence which they may purchase.

The following figures show that the one-sided most-favored-nation treatment accorded to the Allies under the Versailles Treaty has brought them no advantage of any importance:

Countries.	Percentage of German total. Imports. 1913.	1924.	Exports. 1913.	1924.
Great Britain	8.1	9.1	14.2	8.3
France	5.4	6.2	7.8	1.4
Belgium	3.2	1.6	5.5	1.7
Sweden	2.1	0.7	2.3	4.3
Italy	3.0	3.4	3.9	3.6
Switzerland	2.0	3.2	5.3	5.4
Holland	3.1	4.2	6.9	9.9
U. S. A.	9.8	9.3	5.4	9.3

Dutch middlemen have negotiated an agreement with France, under which no reparation tax will be levied on German goods bought by Dutch merchants for their own account and re-exported to France. Thus, if the reparation levy is put into execution in France, the French share in German exports will probably diminish still further in favor of Holland.

Rapid Rise Of Chinese Shipping Company

The Cheng Kee Shipping Company was started in 1901 with a capital of only $40,000, but is now one of the leading shipping firms in China waters. The company has at present a fixed capital of $10,000,000 and owns a fleet of 23 steamers with a total tonnage of 63,700. Its net profits for 1923 amounted to $383,552, though last year was considered a bad year for shipping business, partly due to the unfavorable conditions of the money market in the Far East. The company had very humble beginnings. In 1901 a sailor named Chang Feng-cheng, a native of Kinchow, Fengtien province, managed to get together $40,000, and chartered two Japanese steamboats of 500 tons each, opening a regular steamboat service between Dairen and Chefoo. Four years later, five more Japanese vessels of 1,000 tons each were chartered, and the service was extended to other coastal ports, including Tientsin, Shanghai, Antung, Newchwang and Tsingtao, with headquarters remaining at Dairen. In 1908 the company's capital was increased to $120,000. Five more steamers of 1,000 tons each, four chartered and one bought, were added to the fleet. The next development was the opening of branch offices at Tientsin, Lungkow, Antung, Chefoo and Shanghai. Two new steamers of 1,500 tons each were bought by the company in 1911.

The history of the company in the next few years was a record of unqualified success. In 1921 six more steamers were added to the fleet, three of these ships, of 2,000 tons each, being bought and the other three chartered from Japanese shipping firms. The capital was increased to $300,000. Hongkong was included in the sailing schedule and a branch office opened there. In 1915 the company's capital was increased to $1,000,000. Five new steamers, each of 2,800 tons, were bought. Regular sailings were opened between the Yangtze ports and between certain overseas ports including Singapore, Bangkok, Saigon etc. From 1916 to 1920 the company's business, stimulated probably by the war conditions in Europe, reached the zenith of its prosperity. During this period seven vessels, two of 4,000 tons each, one of 3,000 tons and four of 2,000 tons each, were bought. In the subsequent four years, 1920-1924, the sailing fleet was further increased by the purchase of five new ships, having a total displacement of 20,700 tons. These bring up the present number of the company's owned ships to 23 with a total tonnage of 63,700 tons.

Mr. Chang, the sailor, is the sole owner of the line, although it is nominally a joint stock company, started under Japanese auspices. During the early stages of its business career, the company used to receive a subsidy from the Japanese authorities in the Kwantung Leased Territory. After 1919, the company, owing to the prevailing anti-Japanese sentiment in China, sought to free itself from Japanese patronage by registering with the Ministry of Agriculture and Commerce. Its capital was then increased to $10,000,000, of which $5,000,000 has been paid up. Its head office has been removed to Chefoo, although Dairen remains the center of its business activity.

Silk Report

Messrs. William Little and Co., Ltd., in their report dated November 21, state:

There has been quite a fair volume of business done this week, though doubtless a good part is speculative. Steam Filatures and Mienchews are particularly stronger but it remains to be seen if consuming markets will pay up the advance required, for, as it is, at current levels business is difficult.

Cables from Japan advance the price of Shinshu No. 1 to Yen 2,025 and report a strong market.

Tsatlee Filatures.—Pegasus No. 1, 2, Tls. 820 av. Black House 1, 2, 3, Tls. 805. Kung Kee Mars 1, Tls. 765.

Tsatlee New Style.—M. Y. Blue Dragon and Feima Ex. 1, 2, Tls. 915 av. Cloud Unicorn Double Horse Ex. 1, 2, Tls. 900 av (old). Sheep and Flag 1, 2, Tls. 825 av. Ostrich Ex. 1, Tls. 815 av. Mokansan Ex. 1, Tls. 805 av.

Steam Filatures.—Quite a good business is reported, chiefly in medium grades on basis of Tls. 1,04 av.

Holders generally firm and asking higher prices.

Yellow Steams.—A good business has been done both in Shantung and Mienchews and here; also higher prices are now asked.

Shantungs No. 1, 910. Best Tls. 960.

Mienchews Good Tls. 700-10.

Tussah Filatures 8 coc Prices show Tls. 10 advance and a moderate business has been done on basis of Tls. 520 av. for Best.

The Soviet Political Machine And Trotsky

RUSSIA is really governed today by a political machine technically known as the political bureau —the so-called polit boro—composed of seven men, each one being a composite of all that any political boss from the days of the notorious Tweed in New York has hoped to be in his wildest dream of party manipulation. This group constitutes the inner machine and is the absolute dictator of present day Russia. This description of the government of Russia was written by Mr. Isaac Marcosson in the Saturday Evening Post for October 25.

These seven men who control the destinies of the 130,000,000 millions of Russians are Stalin, secretary of the Communist Paty and chief wire-puller for the administration; Zinovieff, president of the Leningrad Soviet and political boss of the former capital; Kamenev, president of the Moscow Soviet, the modern Russian Richelieu; Bukharin, editor of the Pravda, one of the two leading newspapers and Lenin's real successor; Tomsky, head of the Soviet Labor Federation; Rykoff, Premier—and Trotsky, head of the Red Army.

To refer again to Mr. Marcosson's description, these seven men control Soviet Russia through a system of inter-locking directorates which make the old organisation of the Standard Oil Company in the United States look like a piker.

These seven men through their agents reach out through the length and breadth of Russia and not a man is appointed to position either internally or to the diplomatic service abroad without their consent and approval and that approval is not given unless he has been tested and found true to the principles of the leaders. The real source of power of course is in the Communist Party which up to the time of the death of Lenin numbered some 350,000 men and women. At the time of Lenin's funeral while the people were stirred up over the almost barbaric splendor of this event, the Communist party took in 300,000 new members making the present membership 650,000, a rediculously small body, when it is considered that it dominates over 130,000,000 people.

When Lenin died in January of this year everybody asked the question, "After Lenin—What?" Was communism to break up and a new revolution to come and was the result of this revolution to be a return to economic sanity or was it to result in some new and more terrible type of bolshevism? The answer was, as far as the outside world could discern—nothing! And the reason was that Lenin's fellows in the little political machine, being shrewd in the psychology of the ignorant Russian peasant, deliberately set about to capitalise the death of Lenin. As stated above the funeral of Lenin was a tremendous event for those who observed it in person and films made of the funeral were later shown throughout the land. Then the campaign began to glorify or deify Lenin and while Mr. Marcosson was in Moscow he asked a schoolboy on the street, "Who is God?" and the lad answered without hesitation, "Lenin."

But in spite of the fact that all appeared to run smoothly after the death of Lenin, there has been going on inside of the inner circle of the Soviet machine, the "polit-boro," a fierce struggle for control, that the outside world has known little of. Yesterday we had a dispatch from Moscow stating that much excitement prevailed over the publication of numerous resolutions demanding action against Trotsky for alleged unorthodoxy. Trotsky is still president of the military revolutionary council and commissar for military and naval affairs and from the news dispatch his colleagues apparently are now trying to deprive him of his position and power. A recent conference of political officials of the red army and fleet passed a resolution supporting Zinoviev, Kamenev and Stalin against Trotsky and it was rumored, according to the news report, that the military revolutionary council is to be convoked for the purpose of naming Trotsky's successor.

Of the seven men who rule Russia through the political machine described in the foregoing, the three men who dominate the machine are Stalin, Zinoviev and Kamenev. These men dominate everything except one man and that one is Trotsky who perhaps has more ability than any of them and who holds his position because of his organising ability and because of the fear of the disorganisation which may result in the Red army if Trotsky is cast aside, owing to the fact that he is the hero of the army and of the people generally. To revert to Mr. Marcosson's description, "Trotsky has been the one man in Russia with the temerity to rebuke the autocracy that rules. He has particularly criticised their treatment of the economic situation. If a famine complicates the present lack of production—and it is among the possibilities—he will not only be vindicated but may succeed to Stalin's post as unofficial chairman."

The Recantation Of Gandhi

RECENTLY, in dealing with the singular tactics of the Indian Swarajists, we expressed the hope that Mr. Gandhi had too much of the qualities of intellectual leadership to pin his faith overlong to methods calculated to impede rather than advance the cause of the Indian nationalists, and that he would before long be persuaded to recast his political views in the direction of constructive endeavor rather than purely destructive work, which has been the bane of most Oriental countries that have experimented with democracy. The most sanguine, however, could scarcely have anticipated so soon a public recantation on the part of Mr. Gandhi as announced by telegram yesterday. At a meeting of the Committee of the All India Congress, Mr. Gandhi, in moving approval of the compromise suggested at the Swarajist Conference at Calcutta largely suspending the program of non-cooperation, made a surprising recantation of his views, especially with regard to entry into the legislative councils, which he has hitherto resolutely opposed and which is the main barrier between orthodox politicians and Swarajists. Mr. Gandhi sadly admitted that he had lost the power to command universal acceptance of his views. He exclaimed: "I am not a lunatic. I am a reasonable man. I am losing ground gradually and I would not hesitate to bend before Swarajists and Liberals. If necessary, I shall bend before Englishmen if they will only show a change of heart."

The spirit of humility consistently shown by Mr. Gandhi is perhaps a good augury for future cooperation between the governing authorities and the governed in India. It is better than insensate hatred of the foreigner such as Dr. Sun Yat-sen tried to fan into existence when he flitted like a phantom figure across the political stage of Shanghai the other day. There is something almost Christ-like about Mr. Gandhi. When a British judge was sentencing him to a term of imprisonment for his part in the non-cooperation movement, Gandhi assumed an attitude of humility combined with exquisite politeness. He is undoubtedly a remarkable figure. He now comes forward and frankly owns that he has made a mistake, and it is certainly no disgrace for anyone to acknowledge that his judgment has been wrong. On the contrary, it requires forces of character which is usually lacking in little men, and whatever faults Gandhi may have, no one can accuse him of being petty. One passage in his declaration, however, is somewhat inexplicable. He says that, if necessary, he will not hesitate to bend before Englishmen if they will only show a change of heart. It is not easy to understand what he means by that. If any change of heart were needed, it is really due from the Indian malcontents who refuse to acknowledge the great debt that the country owes to the British Raj and the blessings which have been bestowed by a system of government that rests in the final analysis upon justice rather than force.

A series of articles on the constitutional outlook in India have recently been appearing in the Times of India from its special correspondent at Simla, the seat of the Government, which have attracted wide notice. The writer has shown how the Swarajists in the Legislative Assembly have inveigled the Independent Party in the House into alliance with them and how the two parties, acting together, are subordinating the consideration of public business, on its merits, to the pursuit of Swarajist political aims and are, for this purpose, utilising the needs of Government in the Legislature as a means of coercing constitutional authority. The policy, if persisted in, can lead to only one result, and that will not be in the interests of India. Without effective opposition led by men who believe in constitutionalism first and last, the Swarajists will have no difficulty in securing full play to their destructive mania. What the Swarajist leaders propose to do in the next Delhi session towards making the Assembly like the Legislative Councils in the Central Provinces and Bengal, into what further quagmires of revolutionary tactics they will essay to lead their henchmen of the Independent Party, cannot certainly be foretold. Pandit Motilal Nehru appears to have answered to all inquirers that he has no settled plan. Destruction, of course, has less need of foresight and pre-deliberation than construction. But presumably he cannot decide his scheme for next spring until Congress has had its meeting and his executive council—Mr. Das' executive council—has given him orders. Those in touch with the party leaders up at Simla recently were given to understand that they need not then look for developments of importance but should expect them in the Delhi session. That is the obvious conclusion. With the party of destruction in the ascendancy, intent upon the performance of their declared program, what to anticipate is fairly clear, and Pandit Motilal Nehru profitably utilised the past session to expand and strengthen his ground for an extension of the sabotage that he initiated in the Central Legislature last March. What is wanted to ensure real progress, not in pulling down the constitutional frame-work already erected but to strengthen and expand it and fill in the structural details, is hard, courageous work by a real Constitutional Party.

Other Views Than Ours On The War In China

THE BOLSHEVISTS AND CHINA

(The News, Indianapolis, Ind.)

The Russian government apparently distrusts the motives of every other power. History will record the self-imposed isolation of the Slavs as one of the strange developments of the early part of the twentieth century. With a world welcoming the overturn of the czars and prepared to aid the country in its struggle for advancement, it traveled briefly the road to democracy only to fall into the clutches of communism. To the leaders who are striving to shape Russian destiny, all inside and outside the country in disagreement with what communism proposes are humanity's enemies. Into affairs that have no connection with soviet's policies they insist on reading a sinister significance.

From Riga comes the word that Izvestia, which is accustomed to speak with a full understanding of the Bolshevist government's views, is bitter against Great Britain, France, the United States and Japan for having sent warships to Chinese waters when civil war developed. "It is," says the Russian newspaper, "not only military interference with China's domestic affairs, but the beginning of a new world conflict. Intervention is aimed against China and the soviet union because we made the Chino-Soviet treaty. Great Britain, France, America and Japan intend to partition China What can stop them? Only the revolutionary proletariat and above all the Chino-Russian alliance." Under official Bolshevist auspices there has been organised at Moscow a Hands Off China Society, which has issued a world appeal against "imperialist brigands who attack China's independence."

When it is recalled that China had existed for thousands of years as an independent entity, that the nations now accused of designs on its sovereignty have pledged themselves to respect the right of the Chinese to rule themselves—and have abided by the pledge—the pitiable insufficiency of the Bolshevist charge is evident. It seems to be forgotten that the United States long has been a leader in promoting policies designed to keep China intact, and Japan voluntarily withdrew the control it exercised over Shantung, Chinese territory held by Germany, which was captured from Germany by Japan in the world war. In the civil strife now going on there also has been a public declaration by Japan, the nearest country to China, that there would be no interference in Chinese internal affairs. Other nations are similarly bound by Washington conference treaty agreements.

Warships were dispatched to Shanghai when the outbreak began because, since the Chinese government admittedly is weak, there was no guaranty that foreigners and foreign interests in that city would be protected in case it was captured. Marines are on guard in the foreign quarter for that reason and none other. There has been no intervention in domestic affairs.

TREATY ENGAGEMENT BY CHINA

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS:

Sir,—It appears the above is recognised as a matter of vital importance, the interested Powers have, in consequence, jointly demanded a renewed assurance from the new Chinese Government. I am of the opinion the assurance demanded for has such objects other than the treaty alone and, if I am correct, the comments made by the public are, therefore, inaccurate.

As far as my information goes, the Chinese Government has never abandoned its observation of the treaty obligations, although she may have failed in some minor respects, as the result of internal unrest, which must be eventually suppressed by indirect intervention from sources probably other than her own. I, therefore, hold that the action taken by the Powers is not limited to the comments already made.

China is a vast country thickly populated. With the internal unrest, it is impossible for a Government situated in as far up as Peking to deal with the doings of not only its people, but also of such acts and things committed by such foreigners, who are liable under the Treaty and over whom their own authorities have even failed, or neglected, to exercise jurisdiction. A most apparent instance, which I may quote in support, is the registration by their authorities of small steam and motor propelled vessels plying for hire between non-treaty Ports along the tributaries of the Yangtsze River. What right have their authorities to permit their subjects, or citizens, to carry on such trade within the meaning of the Treaty is one of the questions that calls for replies from the authorities concerned. Wilful infringement of the Treaty is a far more serious matter than the inability on the part of the Chinese Government, as above referred to. I trust the conscientious authorities will immediately cause the termination of such practices before measures are taken by the high quarters.

JOHN CHINAMAN.

Shanghai, Nov. 25, 1924.

SENTIMENT AND PHILANTHROPHY

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS:

Sir,—There is, you will know, a proposal before the "China Merchants" to sell for 'breaking up' purposes the good ship 'Kiang-foo.' You will know that this 'Beam Engine' vessel is one of the oldest and best-known ships out of this Port: that there is a large (and not light) sentiment attaching to the vessel, probably one of the three or four remaining ships of this type.

It seems unnecessary to urge the kindly, the personal feeling which transients, residents and sailor men have in seeing this 'passing of an old Servant,' in the date suggested for one of the, as it were, 'Land-marks' of the maritime Life of China. I have, with your permission, a nobler and more fitting destiny to suggest.

Prominent amidst the known Philanthrophic undeavors here, prominent, promising, and permanent, there runs the (one thinks Premier) Hospital, the Shantung Road Hospital. This Hospital, under the London Mission, has for years performed sterling service to this midst, progressing in the busy and silent altruism of High Endeavor to a niche in Public Esteem which will explain my present suggestion.

There is an urgent need of added accommodation to meet the growing usefulness of The Shantung Road Hospital—a need not new but the more emphatic day by day. We know that extension should be in the same vicinity as the present Hospital. We further know that extension there is prohibitive—land prices, etc.

And here I have perhaps presented my idea, a Floating Hospital, and as it might be 'annexe' to The Shantung Road Hospital—a possibility worthy perhaps of general consideration.

Of the accommodation which such a Hospital would afford, anyone familiar with a sizable older-type of ship will be familiar. With the possibility of anchoring the Kiang-foo along the fore-shore convenient, approachable, ornamental, prominently and silently performing added sterling service—with the general potentialities of my suggestions all who think will be quickly 'at Home.'

With the appeal—why, with the sentimental appeal to brethren of my Cloth, the Town appeal (for I would suggest the anchoring of the 'Kiang-foo' between the Customs and the Club—a prominent place—the Chinese appeal. I suggest that no more fitting bid for public benefit could be tabled.

I hope that someone (preferably some Doctor) will take up the feasibility of this suggestion, that some more than momentary flicker of interest may follow. I reassert that it is no fit end for a sound ship to be cold-bloodedly offered to the scrap-bidders the while. She has other, better and nobler potentialities. Stationary I should say there would be 30 or 40 years Life in the Kiang-foo.

Shipmasters:—This is quite a sound idea. Note, a longer 'note' than this I think, it would be better for some Medico to do the Wide Decks, airy rooms, light, air, etc.

Cut Steel and Gilded Buckles Are Worn By Smart Women On Walking Shoes

Cut-Steel buckles, that once would have been considered appropriate only for evening or elaborate afternoon wear, are now found on black leather walking shoes of the Colonial type. There is something a little incongrous in the effect, until you get used to it. And even more incongruous at first is the effect of sparkling gilt buckles on Colonial pumps of russet leather. In the sketch both these styles are shown—the black leather pumps with Cuban and low heels. With the former are shown gray stockings with a narrow pointed black heel.

This autumn there seems to be a distinct and rather long-incoming response to the demand for a more rounded, shorter-vamped shoe. This does not mean that American shoe dealers are offering shoes of the stubby-toed sort that we used to look upon with a tinge of suspicion. To be sure we knew that they made one's feet look smaller, but what sort of people wore them anyway? That was the attitude we once took toward the extremely short-vamped shoe.

The shorter-vamped shoe of today is not extreme, however; it is just a very attractive sort of compromise.

Numerically patent leather shoes seem to lead among smart women. Then these new black leather Colonials with cut-steel buckles seem to be gaining in favor. Gray shoes with gray stockings to match are worn, but rarely seen with gray frocks. With the black shoe nude stockings still seem to be chosen more often than gray—though gray has its champions among the welldressed.

English women feel—do they not?—that satin footgear ought never, never to be worn in the daytime save indoors. The prejudice does not apparently hold good on this side of the Atlantic, for at smart outdoor gatherings this autumn several smartly dressed women have been wearing brown satin shoes with matching stockings when wearing brown or beige frocks.

The opera pump, in modified vamp and slightly rounded toe, seems to be a style of footgear that offers little difficulty to shoe salesmen. Its success and the success of the Colonial pump with a large buckle comes as indicative that women by and large had grown just a trifle weary of the strap slipper.

Black leather walking pumps with cut-steel buckles and russet leather pump with gilt buckle. Gray silk stockings with pointed black heel are worn with the top shoe.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

BY MARY MARSHALL

WHEN HE WRITES

Two or three centuries ago when the busy husband went away from home he was not faced with the thought that he would have to write a daily letter. He promised to send tidings of himself whenever the occasion arose to make it possible to get a letter taken back. One of the hardest things about separations of this sort was the long days, months and sometimes years of anxiety. There was always the dread uncertainty. Nowadays if we get no news within a given time we start making inquiries, we write, cable, wireless, telephone, send a night letter—do something that will at least give us a chance to learn the truth.

The young man going away to the university for the first time was not expected to write twice a week or once a week. He sent messages home when he chanced to encounter any one going that way occasionally sent letters that sometimes did and sometimes did not get to their destinations.

Now we have no excuses for not writing or sending some sort of message. And there are some women who feel that the devotion of a husband may be measured by the number or the length of the letters he writes. This is in a measure unfair, for some men write as easily and freely as other men eat and breathe, while other men find letter writing a task most trying.

Dining A La Mousterian

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

I wish I could say that in my country people do not carry dogs about on automobile excursions, to introduce canine discords into hotel dining rooms, and with their yelpings and growlings, to tweak the nerves of other peaceable and quiet persons. Anyhow, I think I may say truthfully that that kind of nuisance is less common in America than in Europe.

Where I have been stopping for a couple of weeks, at a beautiful spot in the Vosges mountains, on the exact line where the embattled nations vollied and thundered, and in their madness, tore asunder the very earth a few years ago, I have met this pitiful dog pest—an ancestral reminiscence, apparently, of the Mousterian age, when men and dogs had to make their commons in the cavern homes, and neither thought the worse of the other.

I had supposed that several intervening civilisations must have completely weaned the human race from its fondness for the ancient four-legged, flea-bitten, companions of its savage forebears. But I learned by mistake when I found that I must lunch and dine with variously uncomely dogs, brought by automobile parties to share their pleasures and luxuries, and to bark in loud contempt at doglers people as the canaille of the earth.

To be sure there is an element of humor present when a well-groomed and carefully-combed, hairy white dog, sitting at a table beside his mistress, as dignified as Landseer's "Lord Chancellor," suddenly shows his teeth and utters a piercing, and nerve-wrenching yelp at the ugliest dog in the world, a perfect image, in pelto, of a wild board, held in leash by his master at the other end of the room.

The rattle of nervously dropped knives, forks and spoons resounds from all sides, together with startled exclamations, while the boar strains at his leash and returns to his suddenly discovered enemy a volley of growls that shake the dishes and cause the diners near him to shrink dismayed from his fell jaws.

The sence becomes tragicomic when the master braces himself in his chair, nearly upsetting the table, in his efforts to prevent bloodshed, while the mistress puts her arm around her bad-tempered pet and soothes its ruffled feelings with smiles and caresses, too expensive, apparently, to be wasted on a dog.

The more I see of this kind of thing, however, and the more I meditate upon it, the less certain I feel that, after all, the disease doesn't exist in a pretty pronounced degree in our United States. I seem to recall instances of it there, and when I consider them in connection with the aggravated forms that it takes in Europe, I become, at moments, forgetful of John Stuart Mills' little book on "Liberty"—one of my minor bibles, in which I more or less firmly believe and feel that I might easily turn into a kind of Puritan, ready to urge another constitutional amendment, with a tail to it, directed against the dog habit. There have been so many amendments that another one would hardly be noticed. It could be slipped in unperceived.

If I succeeded in obtaining such an amendment, with its proper legal tail, I would have it provided, among other things, that: "Any dog found leading a woman with a chain shall be pursued by a Government agent with an automatic gun, loaded to kill."

"Any ship approaching our shores, within any distance, with a cargo of dogs (two being always a cargo, and one, in the discretion of the agent) shall be sunk by a Government submarine."

"Any citizen giving or selling a dog to another or transferring a dog or dogs from place to place, by airplane or otherwise, shall be jailed, without bail.

"All existing dogs shall be kept in cellar, and new dogs shall not be allowed to exist. In the discretion of the agents all cellars must be vacated, cruente canem."

But, brought right face to face with such a proposition, no doubt I would myself vote against it and continue to put up with the dog nuisance, since it seems to give pleasure to many people, whose ideas of pleasure I do not understand.

Self-Respect Is Necessary to Inspire Respect in Others

Have you enough respect for yourself?

Knowing yourself as you do, do you feel that you are entitled to the respect of others? If not, how do you expect to gain it? To gain the respect of others you must have respect for yourself.

If you are not what you should be you must make some changes in your life and in your conduct before you can gain the real respect of your acquaintances.

If you are putting up a bluff, wearing a veneer to cover your real self, would you not have more real respect for yourself to be just what you are?

Taking it for granted that you are a person of good understanding, why should you not feel better and have more respect for yourself if you are a real person in the position where you belong rather than a sham, grasping for favors?

You cannot secure such a place in the sun as you wish to have, nor can you respect yourself if you are always depending on someone to carry you along.

You may be tempted to do things which, if discovered, would in a moment wreck your reputation which has taken years to build.

Greater men than you have fallen.

Changsha Still Quiet Despite Rumors Of War

(China Press Correspondence)

Changsha, Hunan, Nov. 20.—In spite of rumors of impending disturbance which have emanated from Western Hunan and Szechuen, Changsha and vicinity are quiet and peaceful. There is, however, a strong undercurrent of uncertainty and those well informed say that the future control of the local government is most uncertain.

Gov. Chao Heng-ti is meeting a state of unrest among the generals in the province, two of whom are definitely in opposition to him. General Tang Yung-yang is said to be established in Changteh and ready to push forward his candidate. Ling Chih-li, for the governorship. The latter was formerly speaker of the provincial house and was acting governor on one brief occasion, an experience which he evidently desires to repeat.

The other general whose loyalty is in question is General Tang Sheng-chih, now located at Hengchow. Tang is the only general now in power in the province who is a graduate of the Paotingfu military school, although this school's graduates occupy almost all the position of subordinate officers in the four divisions now in the province. General Tang Sheng-chih was sent to Loyang two months ago for a conference and it is assumed that he is loyal to Marshal Wu Pei-fu.

Of the other three generals, Ho Yueh-tzu and Liu-Hsing are silent and quite non-commital in the matter of their present allegiance. General Yeh Kai-hsin, however, stands to lose if any great change is made, since it is averred that he almost entirely controls the opium monopoly, for which control he is heartily envied by the other generals.

Gov. Chao Heng-ti may ride the storm in spite of the uncertainties. All are waiting to see the turn of events now that Marshal Wu has reached Hupeh. Strict martial law is maintained over some parts of the city at night and much activity is evident against agitators who may have any connection with Kwangtung or Kwangsi. Executions of these suspects have been frequent of late.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Pays Largest Income Tax

A fortune, to most people, is enough money to keep a couple of motor cars supplied with high cost gasline, employ a butler instead of a boy, take an occasional river trip on a yacht, not a sampan, and be able to possess more than three suits at one time.

Several of those kind of fortunes went to the United States government in payment of income taxes, according to lists published in American newspapers last month.

John D. Rockefeller, jr., heads the list with a tax of $7,500,000, indicating he had an income last year of $15,000,000. Henry Ford paid $2,467,946.10 while his son Edsel paid $1,984,254.83. The Ford Motor company paid $14,449,673.04.

'Father And Son' Week Observed In Chekiang Capital

(China Press Correspondence)

Hangchow, Nov. 23.—The city of Hangchow was one week behind the rest of the world in the celebration of "Father and Son Week," but in spite of this it has just witnessed the most successful observance of the occasion it ever had. There has been a far wider interest than on former years, and the movement has reached out into the government and private schools and into the homes of Church members in a way that has made a real impression.

The week started with addresses on the significance of the world-wide observance of this week in the schools, two or three a day until most of them had such addresses before the end of the week. Then there were two banquets of fathers and sons. One was for members of primary school boys clubs and their fathers, which was attended by forty-odd sons and only four fathers. The other was an open affair to which any father, a member of the Y. M. C. A. was free to bring his son. In this the percentage of the fathers was as high as that of the sons.

There were also two outings for the boys and their fathers. One was an excursion to places on the shores of West Lake for a study of the historic setting, under the leadership of one of the most popular professors of the city. The second followed a meeting of six hundred boys, and was a parade through the streets of the city. This was the high water mark of the week's observance. Every boy had a flag, with a sentiment of loyalty to parents, or on the value of the boy for the future of the nation, and the parade as a whole greatly impressed the city with the idea of better attention to the boy and his problems. The program of the week ended with a picture at which every boys' club member in the city was invited as a special guest, and he had tickets of admission for his mother and father.

One of the most interesting features of the week's celebration was an exhibit of the work which the club members had done during the past year in their schools. There were various kinds of models, drawing, writing, construction, and other forms of hand work. This display drew great numbers, and was a sort of an introduction looking toward a larger one next spring.
